

Portrait of a Sonoma Valley High Graduate

Leaders from business, education, community and government groups have come together to coordinate a process throughout Sonoma County to develop a "Portrait of a Sonoma County Graduate." An important part of the process is to engage stakeholders throughout our county in order to identify what skills and mindsets we think our graduates need as they leave the K-12 system and move into adulthood. Through a series of stakeholder conversations, we are gathering information from across our county that will lead to the development of a Portrait of a Sonoma County Graduate that local school districts, community groups, philanthropic organizations, and government organizations can use to guide how their agency will use resources to best prepare all students to demonstrate the identified skills and mindsets. We invite you to join us. Childcare and translation provided.

What skills should a 21st century graduate have for success in a rapidly changing world?

Join the conversation and nationwide movement to help us create the portrait of our graduates!
